Tips to protect Seniors from being Scammed

Each year, millions of seniors fall victim to some type of financial fraud or confidence scheme. The FBI estimates that seniors lose more than $3 billion each year to fraudsters.

Being familiar with common types of scams and recognizing warning signs can help prevent you from becoming the victim of a scam. Above all else, listen to your gut. If something feels off about a stranger's request, it's okay to be skeptical and investigate further before taking action.

Here are some tips:

Don't act quickly: Scams are based on fear and urgency. Always take a little extra time to think it through and evaluate the legitimacy of what you are being asked to do.

Avoid odd payment types: Scammers will often ask you to send them money with a wire transfer, money order, cryptocurrency, payment app, or gift card. Legitimate businesses will accept credit cards. Be suspicious of excuses for alternative forms of payment.

Notice threatening behavior: Often scams are presented as urgent situations requiring immediate action. If you receive threats or hostility for asking questions that's a sign, they are a scammer.

Be suspicious of fake caller IDs: Using computer software, scammers can make phone calls and emails that look like they're coming from legitimate companies, government organizations, or your local area code. Often it is best to ignore people that contact you uninitiated. At the very least avoid sharing private information. Looking up the organization's contact information and contacting them yourself is a safer option.

Be cautious of impersonation: Con artists can sometimes pretend to be the government. Before making investments or online payments, be sure that you have confirmed that the organization is a legitimate business by asking for information about the company and checking that they are registered with the Better Business Bureau.

Do not reveal personal information: Con artists can try to get you to provide them with personal information like your Social Security number, account numbers, passwords, credit cards, or other identifying information which can be sold to fraudsters.

Avoid suspicious links: Don't click on links in unsolicited emails, texts, or social media messages.

Ask a friend or family member: Before giving out your credit card number or money, ask a friend or family member if the request or situation seems suspicious—particularly if you've been told by someone you don't know that the person needs help.

Add extra security to your accounts: Many online accounts let you turn on multifactor authentication. You may then need to enter a code that's sent to your phone or email, or that you generate with an app, before accessing your account. Enabling this extra security measure can keep scammers out of your accounts even if they get hold of your username and password.
